

WRITING 1

In order to alert the student body on the topic of addictions, your school blog has asked for articles (120-150 words) titled:

“Top 5 addictions that threaten teenagers in our country”.

Write up your article, using the image below and your own ideas on the subject.

WRITING 2

Imagine you work for an advice column in a popular magazine.

You have received a letter from a distraught 17-year-old boy. He is a straight A student, the son of two very successful doctors, and he is about to take his university entry exams. His parents expect him to follow in their footsteps and study Medicine. The only problem is: he is not in the least bit interested in that; he wants to become an actor, but he does not dare tell them.

Write up your reply (120-150 words).

WRITING 3

A group of 50 refugees of various age groups has just arrived in your town.

As part of the student board, you are asked by the mayor to be part of a think tank and contribute your ideas on how this group of people can be successfully integrated to their new life.

Write up a report (120-150 words) to summarize your thoughts, keeping in mind that you have to provide solutions for all age groups involved.
